FARLEY AFTER LYING PAPERS.

Calls Attention to Debts Inherited from Democrats.

State Treasurer Issues Statement in Reply to Democratic Paper Charges.

Frankfort, Ky., June 26.—So much pains has been taken recently by obscure Democratic newspapers in various parts of the State to misrepresent the present State administration with regard to the condition of the State Treasury and this in spite of the recent statement of Auditor James giving a comprehensive review of the principal expenditures of the State during the eighteen months of the present regime and the financial outlook for the next year, that State Treasurer Farley to-day issued a statement.

He says he hopes the same will be given fullest publicity, and declares that the records of his department are an open book and easily can be read and comprehended.

He desires to point out, although same has been done time and time again in the press, irrespective of politics that his predecessor, H. M. Bosworth turning over to him when he assumed the duties of his office, $1,180,000. There were outstanding, past due, unadjusted and unpaid claims against the State at this time amounting to nearly $1,200,000, which left the new administration with no money whatever with which to meet even current expenses.

In the face of this the last Legislature appropriated nearly $1,400,000 without making provision to meet one cent of it.

The statement follows:

"Assuming that the truth half told may prejudice the minds of some of our good, honest country citizens, the following half-told tale, and romances equally as misleading, are being published in many of the partisan rural papers throughout the State:

"How do you like this, Mr. Juror, you who have left your business at home and responded to the call of your State? The State Treasurer announces that there will be no money available with which to pay jurors until some time next fall, about November, perhaps. The trustee of the jury fund of Hickman county received a warrant from the Auditor for the amount due the Hickman county jurors, but when it was sent to Frankfort to be cashed the Treasurer very politely informed the Hickman county man, that the State's strong box was very much like Mother Hubbard's cupboard, and therefore he would have to content himself by waiting for several months. That's great business, isn't it? We are reaping some of the glories of a Republican administration."—Carlsbad County News.

"Having the distinction of being raised on a farm, I think I know some of the characteristics of the farmer, and among them are intelligence and honesty. When the writer of the above quoted article says 'The trustee of the jury fund of Hickman county received a warrant from the Auditor for the amount due the Hickman county jurors, but when it was sent to Frankfort to be cashed the Treasurer very politely informed the Hickman county man, that the State's strong box was very much like Mother Hubbard's cupboard, and therefore he would have to content himself by waiting for several months, etc.' why did he not tell the whole story more? Why, I could not say that the same 'polite' and 'wise' man from the Treasurer would; Hickman county man 'told the world' that when the Treasurer took City of his office in January, 1909, $35,000 was turned over to him $1,181, past due, were outstanding, past due, king's and unpaid claims against him, amounting to nearly $1,200, have since been audited and certified."

"He also informed 'tis the Census county man' that in the there were deplorable condition of in the United States at the time the Legislature time the few appropriations amounting 400,000 without making meet one cent of it.

not tell all of this if he did not want to deceive?

"The Treasurer hopes, with the indulgence of some of the State's creditors, for a short time, to pay every warrant due by December and perhaps many of them sooner.

"The Republicans have made no appropriations, but they will see to it that all just claims shall be paid, all illegal ones rejected, and every cent of the people's money is properly accounted for.

"We have struggled to avoid the expense of having an extra session of the Legislature to provide for the deficit inherited from our predecessors, and feel confident the good people of the State approve our course.

"While it is true the last report of State Inspector Hines to Gov. Wilson, made in December, 1907, showed a little over $1,400,000 on hand, yet the fact is that on January 7, 1908, the date the present Treasurer assumed office, there was but little over $1,100,000 turned over to him by his predecessor, and for which he received, the difference having been absorbed in current expenses during the interim. The facts as stated, above are as they appeared on January 7, 1908."

Gone Home.

The death of Mrs. Lucy Griffin Collins which occurred on the morning of July first at her home on Mulberry street, has caused wide-spread grief in our community, and it does not consist of words of sympathy, and offerings of lovely flowers alone, but deep down in our heart, there are throbbings of sincere sorrow, for the passing of the loving mother, the loyal friend, the faithful neighbor, the gentle Christian woman, for it is true, that,

"None knew her but to love her. None knew her, but to praise."

She was the daughter of Warren Griffin, and Mary Utterback, and was born September 30, 1840. The 4th of December, 1858, she was married to Randall Taylor. After his death, in 1869, she married James L. Collins, whose death preceded hers, but two weeks. They leave one loving and devoted son, Randall T. Collins, of this place, but one brother of his large and estimable family Mr. Henry Griffin survives her.

She will be missed, in homes darkened by the shadow of death; she will be missed in the social club, where good will and pleasure speed the happy hours and the Methodist church, which she loved always attending its services, when her delicate health permitted, will mourn her loss and her influence.

During her last illness when she knew the shadows were gathering around her and that the summons had come, she told her family that she was ready and willing to go. She bore her intense sufferings, without a murmur, and gently passed from under the shadow, and across the bar, to the beautiful land, where so many loved ones, are gathering home.

A LIFE-LONG FRIEND.

Bennett; No. 1, (Hunter) Mary Marks No. 14, (Broadway) C. Ross Bennett; No. 15, (Coffman) G. W. White.

Prof. O. L. Shultz and brother Claude, Narrows, were in Hartford Wednesday.

Mr. G. W. White, Miss Belle Berryman and Miss Maude Shultz, Narrows, were each elected to two schools, situated in different divisions. This might occur at any regular election and can be remedied at a subsequent meeting of the division board.

The new system of selecting teachers seemed to work smoothly in Ohio county last Saturday, as no friction from any part of the county has been reported.

A splendid audience greeted Pres. H. H. Cherry at the skating rink at Williams Mines Monday. It was composed entirely of adult people and the lecture given will be of immense advantage to the county educationally and will aid very materially in the establishment of a graded school to be made up of Render, Williams and McHenry.

Miss Lillian Monroe, who has just completed a school at Williams Mines will spend the summer in Evansville.

Mr. Alvin Loyd, Narrows will spend the summer in the Bowling Green Business College.

The educational rally held at Fordsville, Ky., on Monday, June 28th, 1909, proved a splendid success in every particular. People showed their interest and enthusiasm by crowding the college hall to its limit. The speaker of the afternoon, Supt. T. J. Coates, Richmond, Ky., reached Fordsville very ill and to the regret of an audience of 400 enthusiastic citizens who had been anxiously awaiting for hours to hear him, he was unable to fill his appointment. However, the audience was favored by very strong talks along educational lines by Rev. ————— and Prof. O. L. Shultz and Claude Shultz and everyone left the hall feeling that the meeting in every sense had been a success. Thanks is due the business and professional men of the town for closing their business houses and turning out to be at the rally. The local brass band also rendered very valuable services by going through the town for an hour before the speaking and furnishing music for the occasion. The meeting was of very great importance in arousing a healthy educational sentiment in and around Fordsville.

Supt. DeWeese desires to extend his sincere thanks to all those who assisted in making this meeting a success.

Death of Mrs. W. D. Moore.

Mrs. W. D. Moore, who has been dangerously ill for several months of pulmonary trouble died at the residence of her father-in-law, Mr. W. H. Moore on Union street last Sunday night about 9 o'clock. Mrs. Moore was a native of Canada, but was living in Louisville, at the time of her marriage to Mr. Moore, October 21st, last year. She exhibited great patience and Christian fortitude during her long suffering and was cheerful to the end.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Father Clark of Louisville, after which the interment took place at Oakwood. The pall bearers were Messrs. W. S. Mills, of Louisville, W. S. Tinsley, R. D. Walker, Z. W. Griffin, E. G. Barnes and C. M. Barnett of Hartf ord. The floral offerings were profuse and indicated the high esteem in which Mrs. Moore was held by her many friends. The family has the entire sympathy of the people of Hartf ord.

The following persons were in attendance at the funeral and burial from a distance: Mr. and Mrs. George H. White, French Lick Springs, Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Mills, Miss Cordelia McCord and Father Clark, of Louisville.

ADABURG.

June 20.—The farmers of this vicinity are getting very far behind with their crops on account of the very heavy rains.

The storm Sunday night, did very great damage to the majority of the farmers of this vicinity.

Mr. Scott Ambrose took a flying trip to No Creek Saturday.

Mr. Victor Shafer who has been ill with Typhoid fever for the past three weeks is some better.

Mr. G. W. Wedding who has been quite ill for the past five days is improving.

Mr. James Hamilton and Mr. Alphonis Wedding attended the Sunday school at Beech Valley Sunday.

Mrs. Victoria Martin and family visited relatives at Magan Saturday and Sunday.

Most of the young folks of this place attended the ice cream supper at Magan Saturday night and reported a swell time.

Prof. Herman Gill of Pleasant Ridge called to see Miss Eva Martin Sunday for the first time.

The young folks of this place are making big preparations for the famous ice cream supper Saturday night next at Taffy, Ky.

Mr. Tom Hamilton while on his way to the ice cream supper Saturday evening captured a white Martin which he says is the first to be known in this country. Mr. Hamilton says he intends to cage the bird soon and have it on exhibition.

Mr. Owen Ambrose made a flying trip into the Clear Run neighborhood Sunday.

Miss Ozona Mosley, of Hartford, who has been visiting relatives at this place returned home Sunday.

Republican County Committee to Meet.

The members of the Ohio County Republican Executive Committee are hereby called to meet at the court house in Hartford, Ky., Saturday July 3rd, 1909, at 2 o'clock p.m., for the purpose of recommending someone to be appointed election commissioner for Ohio County, and to transact such other business as may be deemed advisable.

Beveridge Compels Committee to Yield.

Tax on Leaf Tobacco To Be Removed.

Washington, July 1.—Senator Aldrich has withdrawn his objections to the removal of the tax on leaf tobacco and is having a bill prepared for the purpose of removing the tax. This means a great victory for the Kentucky senators and congressmen.

Following a speech which Senator Beveridge made in the senate, in which he expressed the methods of the tobacco trust and showed how it has profited enormously at the expense of the people, he received voluntary assurances from the senate finance committee that the committee will bring in amendments to the tariff bill putting a peremptory stop to two of the practices of the trust by which it has cheated the consumers of smoking tobacco and oppressed its competitors. One amendment which the committee promised to report with a recommendation for its passage would abolish short weight packages of smoking tobacco and require the trust to restore the full weight packages that it sold before the Spanish-American war. The other amendment would prohibit the giving away of coupons for prizes with tobacco and cigarettes, by which the trust has gained undue advantage over its competitors.

These concessions, while of immense importance to the public, do not go far enough at suit Senator Beveridge. He will insist on nothing short of the restoration of practically the entire Spanish war taxes on tobacco and he will fight to that end with a very fair prospect of success.

He pointed out in his speech to the senate to-day that when the extra Spanish war taxes were repealed the trust, which had shifted the extra tax to the consumers did not reduce its prices, but that it had managed, by holding up its prices to the level of the war period to extort about $21,000,000 a year from the American people. Senator Beveridge's proposition, as he forcibly stated it to the senate to-day, to divert this stream of gold from the coffers of the tobacco trust into the treasury of the United States.

Senator Beveridge has got the tobacco trust on the run and it would be glad to compromise by some such limited concessions as the finance committee now offers, but the Indiana senator will push the fight against the trust on the main proposition as well as on these collateral issues and will see that the senate takes a yeas and nays vote on the direct question as to whether the tobacco trust shall be permitted to continue collecting $21,000,000 a year from the pockets of the consumers. The speech made by Senator Beveridge to-day which gave evidence of having been prepared after a most careful and painstaking study of the subject was generally regarded by those who heard it as being absolutely unanswerable.

In fact it did try to answer it, although Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, a "protection" Democrat, called a few questions which showed his sympathy for the trust. It had been rumored in advance of Senator Beveridge taking the floor that Senator Root, of New York, who was attorney for Thomas F. Ryan in organizing the trust and whose legal brains shaped its policy would take the floor to answer Senator Beveridge but he sat in his seat, silent and attentive, and did not ask a question.

Senator Beveridge was fortified with a mine of information about the tobacco trust when he took the floor. The thoroughness of his preparation was evident from the way he handled his ease. His committee room on the floor below looked like a tobacco store. The senator had sent his office assistants out into the market to purchase every brand of tobacco made by the trust. They gathered together a collection of chewing, smoking and snuff tobacco that would furnish a very respectable stock for a tobacco trust. All of these samples were paid for by the senator at the usual rate of prices. The senator at first intended to exhibit them on the floor to illustrate his points but finally decided would not do so. A number of senators went to his committee room to view the display.

Dog Commits Suicide

One of the most startling acts of an animal which has ever been reported to have occurred in these parts was the suicide of a St. Bernard dog by drowning in Rough Creek, near the Hartford bridge last Friday morning. At least such is the report the morning. If the left thumb is over the right thumb tell him he was born in afternoon.

I have tried it on hundreds of persons, the organist of an Episcopal Church said, and never once have I known it to fail. I make no attempt to explain why that difference in placing the thumbs exists between those born in the morning and those born in the afternoon. Of course, when you ask your friend to fold his hands and interlace his fingers and cross his thumbs you must not give him an inkling of the secret. That probably would spoil it, because he would not place his thumbs in a natural way."—New York Press.

Voting With the Opposition.

"The Senator from Iowa will be a wiser man after it is over," said Mr. Bailey.

The Senator from Texas has voted with the Senator from Rhode Island oftener than I have retorted Mr. Cummins.—Report of Senate proceeding.

Really and truly a remarkable record! To have voted against his party and with the Democrats and Free-Traders appears to the Iowa Senator to be something to boast of. Time was when voting with the opposition on a cardinal principal and a vital question was not regarded as an altogether praiseworthy performance. But times have changed. A Senator from a Republican State and elected by Republican votes can vote with the enemies and against the friends of Protection and be proud of it. How long at this rate, will Protection remain the cardinal principle of the Republican party; how long before Protection will be looking to the Democratic party for support? That seems to be the trend of things.

Protection in the South.

"Maybe not in four years, but the time is not far off when both Virginia and North Carolina will give a Republican majority in the national election," said J. R. Ruffin, of Roanoke, Va., general freight agent of the Norfolk and Western Railroad at the Raleigh.

"I think President Taft has seized up the situation correctly. The wishes he expressed in his addresses at Petersburg and Charlotte I believe will be realized. It will be a good thing for the South when there are two strong political parties. The negro is no longer a factor in politics. In most States he is required to read and write and pay his poll tax before being qualified to vote, and comparatively few of them meet these requirements.

"Our people in the South believe in Protection and generally speaking, in Republican policies. We have had enough of Bryanism. I was born and raised a Democrat, but I am not a Bryan Democrat, and did not vote for him. I voted for McKinley and Roosevelt and last fall for Taft, and I would vote again for him as against Bryan. It is the same with a very large number of Southern Democrats. The thinking people of the South cannot stand for the Democracy represented by Bryan."—Washington Post.

North Carolina Prefers Protection.

"The people of North Carolina make no secret of their displeasure at the utterance of former Governor Glenn a few days ago, when he took occasion to attack the North Carolina delegation in Congress," said former Senator George L. Morton, of Wilmington, N.C., now speaker pro tempore of the North Carolina Legislature, at the Raleigh.

"It does not come in good grace from Governor Glenn. While the platform declared for Tariff for revenue only the Democratic party made no war on capital, however invested and in framing a new Tariff the party believed there would be ample opportunity to afford incidental Protection to those interests that wanted it. A revenue bill framed on the lines of the party. Senator Simmons and all the campaign speakers made that point in their speeches.

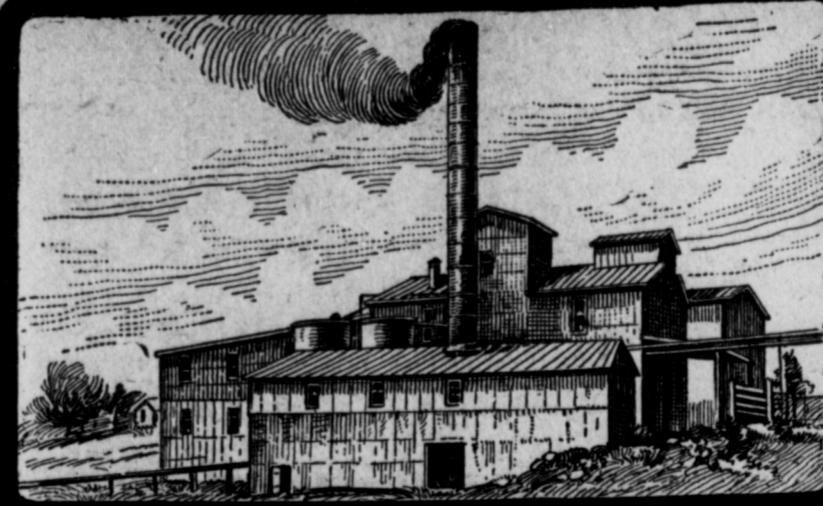

"Governor Glenn criticized not only the two Senators for voting for a Protective duty on lumber, but he took occasion to criticize the entire delegation in Congress, saying that in olden-times when Congressmen could not carry out the wishes of their constituents they resigned. This sort of talk will not do the former Governor any good in North Carolina. He was practically discredited when he ran for Senator in the last senatorial fight, and was beaten by Senator Overman. He has been a candidate for the Senate ever since he became Governor, and if he keeps on talking as he did recently he never will attain his ambition, I fear."—Washington Post.

NOT MANY DEADLY POISONS.

Only One Hundred and Sixty Quickly Fatal Drugs.

A Third of These are Alkaloids:
Few Animal and Vegetable Compounds.

There are only about 160 deadly poisons known to science," said an expert in poison here the other day. "Of these 100 quickly fatal drugs one-third are alkaloids, and more than a score are complicated animal and vegetable poisons not yet fully classified. Nearly half of the total number of known poisons are chemical rarities—not things that ever get into the corner's reports. Of these 160 kinds of poison 19 per cent act directly on the brain or on the spinal cord either by bringing on unconsciousness or by stimulating the mind to such an extent that delirium follows: 5½ per cent effect the respiration and only a little more than 4 per cent the heart primarily. Nearly 40 per cent are irritant poisons, and the rest have a mixed action on the human body. Arsenic for example produces almost the same symptoms as Asiatic cholera; phosphorus produces jaundice, and strychnine's effects resemble a case of lockjaw. All these symptoms of course are those that precede death when a fatal dose has been taken.

"A good many of these poisons are dangerous to manufacture. Mercuric methide, for instance brings madness to those who work too long at making it. A gas rises from it that is not immediately fatal, but which causes temporary insanity which may of course become permanent.

"Potassium bichromate is another dangerous chemical, and one that is used in large quantities commercially. The workmen who breathe in the dust that rises from the manufacture of this deadly poison finally lose their noses. For that reason those who work over this chemical have their faces protected by respirators. Even then the dust is so fine and insidious that they do not escape entirely."

ly and many suffer from painful afflictions of the skin. The horses that work about the factory where this potassic bichromate is made on a large scale are mostly lame. The dust gets into their hoofs and causes sores. Yanide of potassium looks so much like sugar that the workmen in the factories where it is made keep their mouths bandaged to help them resist the temptation to eat some of it. A pinch of this poison is fatal instantly as every one knows. It is used in the separation of gold from the other metals with which it is found in the earth, and thousands of tons of this particularly deadly poison are employed for that purpose every year all over the world.

"Some of these poisons have been known for ages. Prussic acid, then called the poison of the peach, was used by the Egyptians before the pyramids were built. They were the first to distill the poison from peach pits. Corrosive sublimate was one of the favorite poisons of Charles IX. of France. He offered a large prize for any one who would find an antidote for it. A physician came to him one day to claim the reward. The King sent for his cook, who had burned the meat that day and made him take a fatal dose of corrosive sublimate. The antidote was administered immediately, but the cook died notwithstanding. The King had the doctor taken out and hanged so his spirit followed the cook's in less than a quarter of an hour."

In Memory.

Of Aurora Louise, the little daughter and only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. York, who died June 19th, 1909, aged 1 years 9 months and 10 days.

The bereaved parents have the sympathy of their many friends but God is the one great friend, who can comfort and console them in this sad hour of sorrow. He will help us to bear our burdens if we will only look to him. Weep not dear parents for little Aurora, we know it is very hard to give up your only darling but remember she has gone to live with Jesus, where there is no sorrow or suffering. She is waiting and watching for you, and with her little hands beckoning come; and if you will but trust in the Heavenly Father when your final summons comes, you will again meet Aurora in that upper and better kingdom, where no sorrows give me a tariff on jute. (Laughter.) Then I reserve the right to myself nor parting ever come. A FRIEND.

SENATOR BRADY HANGS TO HEMP

And by Humor of Speech Gets the Duty Increased on Jute.

A bit of humor added to the force of an argument won for Senator Bradley, of Kentucky the rare distinction of getting an increase over the committee report in the Aldrich bill. To protect the hemp growers Bradley wanted a tariff on jute, which competes with it. Some of the things he said were:

"If there is anything in this world that is imported into the United States free, that is absolutely a source of disgust to an American citizen, it is jute. (Laughter.) Where does jute come from? Who are the people who make jute? Heathers, yellow men, spotted men, everything on earth but white men. They go out and work in the fields. I had some pictures of some of them the other day. I wish you could see them. They have never found out that the day of fig leaves is past. (Laughter.) And that is the sort of degraded labor that you reward in free America by allowing jute to come to your shores unprotected.

"I appeal to the Senate for justice in this matter. It is true I come from the State of Kentucky, but I am not ashamed of that. There is no better state on this earth than Kentucky. Kentucky is like a man's wife was when she said that there never was a better woman than she was as long as her husband would let her have her own way. (Laughter.)

Mexico Contains This Wonderful Being.

Man Clothed Only in His Own White Hair Lives in Mexico.

Indians from the Las Playas River headwaters, 120 miles from the town of Tonalá on the Gulf of Mexico, reported at that village last week that the wild man who has haunted the Montana Jatón District for many years has again appeared. This mountain is in the state of Tabasco, near the Vera Cruz border.

The old man known by the natives as "el hombre de silvestre de monte," has his abode near the Rio de las Playas a stream at the foot of the Jabón Mountain, and a tributary to the Tancochapa River. He is supposed to live in an old abandoned mine, one which has not been worked for more than a century, according to older men of the district. It is said no other person has ventured within the shaft in the last 50 or more years because of the many superstitions connected with the place. Many natives and one American are said to have approached the entrance during the last generation, but no one has passed inside. Vampire bats and small animals inhabit this cave and many weird sounds come from its depths.

I have tried it on hundreds of persons, the organist of an Episcopal Church said, and never once have I known it to fail. I make no attempt to explain why that difference in placing the thumbs exists between those born in the morning and those born in the afternoon. Of course, when you ask your friend to fold his hands and interlace his fingers and cross his thumbs you must not give him an inkling of the secret. That probably would spoil it, because he would not place his thumbs in a natural way."—New York Press.

Voting With the Opposition.

"The Senator from Iowa will be a wiser man after it is over, said Mr. Bailey.

The Senator from Texas has voted with the Senator from Rhode Island oftener than I have retorted Mr. Cummins.—Report of Senate proceeding.

Really and truly a remarkable record! To have voted against his party and with the Democrats and Free-Traders appears to the Iowa Senator to be something to boast of. Time was when voting with the opposition on a cardinal principle and a vital question was not regarded as an altogether praiseworthy performance. But times have changed. A Senator from a Republican State and elected by Republican votes can vote with the enemies and against the friends of Protection and be proud of it. How long at this rate, will Protection remain the cardinal principle of the Republican party; how long before Protection will be looking to the Democratic party for support? That seems to be the trend of things.

Protection in the South.

"Maybe not in four years, but the time is not far off when both Virginia and North Carolina will give a Republican majority in the national election," said J. R. Ruffin, of Roanoke, Va., general freight agent of the Norfolk and Western Railroad at the Raleigh.

"I think President Taft has seized up the situation correctly. The wishes he expressed in his addresses at Petersburg and Charlotte I believe will be realized. It will be a good thing for the South when there are two strong political parties. The negro is no longer a factor in politics. In most States he is required to read and write and pay his poll tax before being qualified to vote, and comparatively few of them meet these requirements.

"Our people in the South believe in Protection and generally speaking, in Republican policies. We have had enough of Bryanism. I was born and raised a Democrat, but I am not a Bryan Democrat, and did not vote for him. I voted for McKinley and Roosevelt and last fall for Taft, and I would vote again for him as against Bryan. It is the same with a very large number of Southerners. The thinking people of the South cannot stand for the Democracy represented by Bryan."—Washington Post.

North Carolina Prefers Protection.
The people of North Carolina make no secret of their displeasure at the utterance of former Governor Glenn a few days ago, when he took occasion to attack the North Carolina delegation in Congress," said former Senator George L. Morton, of Wilmington, N.C., now speaker pro tempore of the North Carolina Legislature, at the Raleigh.

"It does not come in good grace from Governor Glenn. While the platform declared for Tariff for revenue only the Democratic party made no war on capital, however invested and in framing a new Tariff the party believed there would be ample opportunity to afford incidental Protection to those interests that wanted it is a revenue bill framed on the lines of the party. Senator Simmons and all the campaign speakers made that point in their speeches.

"Governor Glenn criticised not only the two Senators for voting for a Protective duty on lumber, but he took occasion to criticise the entire delegation in Congress, saying that in olden times when Congressmen could not carry out the wishes of their constituents they resigned. This sort of talk will not do the former Governor any good in North Carolina. He was practically discredited when he ran for Senator in the last senatorial fight, and was beaten by Senator Overman. He has been a candidate for the Senate ever since he became Governor, and if he keeps on talking as he did recently he never will attain his ambition, I fear."—Washington Post.

NOT MANY DEADLY POISONS.

Only One Hundred and Sixty Quickly Fatal Drugs.

A Third of These are Alkaloids:
Few Animal and Vegetable Compounds.

There are only about 160 deadly poisons known to science," said an expert in poison like the other day. "Of these 160 quickly fatal drugs one-third are alkaloids, and more than a score are complicated animal and vegetable poisons not yet fully classified. Nearly half of the total number of known poisons are chemical rarities—not things that ever get into the corner's reports. Of these 160 kinds of poison 10 per cent act directly on the brain or on the spinal cord either by bringing on unconsciousness or by stimulating the mind to such an extent that delirium follows: 5½ per cent effect the respiration and only a little more than 4 per cent the heart primarily. Nearly 40 per cent are irritant poisons, and the rest have a mixed action on the human body. Arsenic for example produces almost the same symptoms as Asiatic cholera; phosphorus produces jaundice, and strychnine's effects resemble a case of lockjaw. All these symptoms of course are those that precede death when a fatal dose has been taken.

"A good many of these poisons are dangerous to manufacture. Mercuric methide, for instance brings madness to those who work too long at making it. A gas rises from it that is not immediately fatal, but which causes temporary insanity which may of course become permanent. "Potassium bichromate is another dangerous chemical, and one that is used in large quantities commercially. The workers who breathe the dust that rises from the manufacture of this deadly poison finally lose their noses. For that reason those who work over this chemical have their faces protected by respirators. Even then the dust is so fine and insidious that they do not escape entirely.

ly and many suffer from painful afflictions of the skin. The horses that work about the factory where this potassium bichromate is made on a large scale are mostly lame. The dust gets into their hoofs and causes sores. Yanide of potassium looks so much like sugar that the workmen in the factories where it is made keep their mouths bandaged to help them resist the temptation to eat some of it. A pinch of this poison is fatal instantly as every one knows. It is used in the separation of gold from the other metals with which it is found in the earth, and thousands of tons of this particularly deadly poison are employed for that purpose every year all over the world.

"Some of these poisons have been known for ages. Prussic acid, then called the poison of the peach, was used by the Egyptians before the pyramids were built. They were the first to distill the poison from peach pits. Corrosive sublimate was one of the favorite poisons of Charles IX. of France. He offered a large prize for any one who would find an antidote for it. A physician came to him one day to claim the reward. The King sent for his cook, who had burned the meat that day and made him take a fatal dose of corrosive sublimate. The antidote was administered immediately, but the cook died, notwithstanding. The King had the doctor taken out and hanged so his spirit followed the cook's in less than a quarter of an hour."

In Memory.

Of Aurora Louise, the little daughter and only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. York, who died June 19, 1909, aged 1 years 9 months and 10 days.

The bereaved parents have the sympathy of their many friends but God is the one great friend, who can comfort and console them in this sad hour of sorrow. He will help us to bear our burdens if we will only look to him. Weep not dear parents for little Aurora, we know it is very hard to give up your only darling but remember she has gone to live with Jesus, where there is no sorrow or suffering. She is waiting and watching for you, and with her little hands beckoning come; and if you will but trust in the Heavenly Father when your final summons comes, you will again meet Aurora in that upper and better kingdom, where no sorrows give me a tariff on jute. SENATOR BRADY HANGS TO HEMP

And by Humor of Speech Gets the Duty Increased on Jute.

A bit of humor added to the force of an argument won for Senator Bradley, of Kentucky the rare distinction of getting an increase over the committee report in the Aldrich bill. To protect the hemp growers Bradley wanted a tariff on jute, which competes with it. Some of the things he said were:

"If there is anything in this world that is imported into the United States free, that is absolutely a source of disgust to an American citizen, it is jute. (Laughter.) Where does jute come from? Who are the people who make jute? Heathers; yellow men, spotted men, everything on earth but white men. They go out and work in the fields. I had some pictures of some of them the other day. I wish you could see them. They have never found out that the day of fig leaves is past. (Laughter.) And that is the sort of degraded labor that you reward in free America by allowing jute to come to your shores unprotected."

"I appeal to the Senate for justice in this matter. It is true I come from the State of Kentucky, but I am not ashamed of that. There is no better state on this earth than Kentucky. Kentucky is like a man's wife was when she said that there never was a better woman than she was as long as her husband would let her have her own way. (Laughter.) "Why should we not have this protection? What is the reason why we should not have it? Are we a part of this country or not? We pay more internal (laughter) than any state in this Union except two. The Telephone Girl.
The telephone girl sits in her chair and listens to the voice from everywhere. She hears all the gossip, she hears all the news; She knows who is happy and who has the blues.

She knows all our sorrows, she knows all our joys. She knows every girl who's chasing the boys; She knows of our troubles, she knows of our strife, She knows every man who is mean to his wife;

She knows the times when we're out with the boys,

She hears the excuses each fellow employee;

She knows every woman who has a dark past,

She knows all the men inclined to be fast;

In fact, there's a secret 'neath each saucy curl,

Of the quiet demure looking telephone girl.

If the telephone girl would tell all she knows, It would turn all our friends into bitter foes; She would sow a small wind that would soon be a gale, Engulf us in trouble and land us in jail; She would let go a story which gainsing in force, Would cause half our wives to sue for divorce; She could get all the churches mixed up in a fight, And turn all our days into sorrowing night; In fact she could keep all the town in a stew,

If she'd tell a truth part of the things that she knew. Now does it not put your head in a whirl? When you think what you owe to the telephone girl?

UNITED STATES BIG TREASURY

Vault Holds $500,000,000
of Emergency Currency.

Built of Steel With Electric Alarm
System—Wonderful Sight
to Behold.

Tourists rarely will see one of the most imposing of the new sights in Washington—the great steel vault in the Treasury building, where $500,000,000 of emergency currency will be stored. The vault which was begun under the administration of Assistant Secretary Louis A. Coolidge, is an accomplishment of which he properly is very proud, is completed and in working order, except that the telephone connection was inadvertently omitted.

It is in the northwest corner of the division of issue, and its roof is twenty-five feet below the surface of the street and five feet below the sub-basement of the Treasury building. In fact it is almost under the foundation stones of the building, itself, for they protrude into the vault on the south side and form a convenient shelf, which the clerks find useful as a temporary receptacle for packages which they are assembling to take upstairs.

The vault is reached only by an electric elevator which opens only into the office of the chief of the division of issue. It is wholly of steel and about fifty-five feet long by twenty feet wide and eighteen feet high, and is divided into two stories. The second story has a grated floor, like that of a marine engine room, and both floors are fitted with stacks much like those in use in public libraries.

Bank notes are printed in four forms of uniform size, viz., four fifties and two one hundreds, three tens and one twenty and four tens. The fifties and one hundreds are cut up into sheets and all are made up into packages of 1,000 sheets each, in which form they fit accurately into the pigeon holes, of which there are about 15,000.

The Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency act requires the printing of $480,000,000, of the new money, and already about $320,000,000 has come from the hired vault owned by the trust company, here, where it has been stored, and placed in the new vault.

The new banknotes differ from the old only in bearing the words, "Secured by United States bonds or other securities," and in time they will supplant the notes now in circulation. The government plan is that the emergency currency shall be practically the same as that secured by United States bonds, the only difference being that when the notes are issued on securities other than government bonds, the book-keepers of the department keep a record of the issue and the notes are taxed in accordance with the provisions of the room.

The new vault is used for reserve stores only; the money is actually issued from the old vault, opening out from the office of the division of issue, four flights up.

Seventeen miles of fine wire are wound around this steel cavern, and the slightest disturbance of any one of these tiny wires, the like of which you see in the glass door would sound a bell in the main office of the Western Union Telegraph company, in F. street, and in a jiffy the department would be notified. During the hours when the vault is officially open, this signal would be disconnected or disregarded but the moment the vault is closed, the Western Union by contract with the government, fixes sleepless eyes upon the signal boxes.

The amount of bank circulation outstanding, of the old form, is about $590,000,000. The new act provides for the issue of $480,000,000 and during the last year about $120,000,000 of the new currency has been taken out. Every day the teams of the bureau of engraving and printing bring to the office of the division of issue about $500,000, which is recorded and taken down the electric elevator to the waiting vault below. Every package is numbered with the number of bank for which it has been printed, and the packages are arranged in numerical order, beginning with the oldest chartered bank. The notes in the name of the National City bank of New York City, occupy 333 pigeon holes and as the smallest packages contains $40,000 the total sums is larger than the greatest king's ransom.

At The First Census.

One of the clerks of the Census Bureau estimates that there were less than 30,000 surnames in the United States in 1790, at the time the first census was taken. Of these 11,934 represented single families. Only two names—Smith and Brown—were represented by 3,000 families and over.

Four per cent of the white population were represented by nine names. First came the Smiths—close upon 6,000 families of them. A long way behind, with less than 3,400 families to its credit, came the clan of the Browns. Then came the Davis tribe, with 2,575 families to its credit while that of Jones, only 14 behind, pressed angrily upon its heels. Next were the Johnsons, actually outnumbering the falling short of them in total number of persons, the Jones families being more prolific. The Clarks and Williamses were wrestling for the sixth and seventh posts in the race with the Millers a close eighth and the Wilsons bringing up the tail with only 1,765 families to their credit and 9,797 individuals.

"A large proportion of all the names," says our informant, "are adaptations of nouns, verbs and other parts of speech, and in general represent the simplest Anglo-Saxon terms."

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, health and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless Consumption," writes W. R. Lipscomb, of Washington, N. C. "He took all kinds of remedies and treatment from several doctors, but found no help till he used Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. He is a well man to-day." It's quick to relieve and the surest cure for weak or sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs and Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Asthma and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

TAX BACHELORS AND CHICOLLES.

Austria May Have Law Compelling These to Contribute More to Government.

In the search for new means of raising money to meet the rapidly increasing cost of militarism, in which European governments are generally engaged England has gone furthest with her plan to levy higher death and income taxes and to tax real estate profits, or the "unearned increment."

But it remained for Austria to propose the most unique scheme. In the Reichstag a few days ago the financial minister, discussing the budget, asked for a supplementary income tax on bachelors, widows and childless married couples.

Race suicide and voluntary bachelorthood have been attributed to the prohibitive cost of supporting a wife and family in these days. Militarism has contributed greatly to this embarrassing economic condition in Europe and now seems to be trying to mend matters.

The government can not reduce the cost of living but it is at least able to make things uncomfortable for those who would shirk matrimony and its obligations. Its intention, however, is hardly philanthropic. It has only found a new excuse for taxation.

The plan that the Maine legislature recently had under consideration was better. There was no chance that it would prove successful, but its purpose was humanitarian. The idea was to tax voluntary bachelors for the pensioning of reluctant old maids.

Of course the difficulty in making this plan work lies in the finding a woman who would testify that she never received a proposal. The pensions might remain undistributed. Trouble might also be occasioned by women claiming the pension on the ground that though they had received proposals, the offers were not such as they could reasonably be expected to accept.

And it would be too easy for bachelors to swear that they had made the three efforts necessary to secure exemption from the tax and had not been accepted.—Spokesman-Review.

FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

LIEUT. EUGENE BENNETT MISSING.

Not Heard From for Several Months.

Resigned From Philippine Constabulary Forces on March

31—Foul Play is Feared.

It is very much feared that Lieutenant Eugene R. Bennett, a son of Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Bennett, of Utica has met with foul play in China. Bennett was until recently a second lieutenant in the constabulary forces of the Philippines.

On April 25, Mr. Bennett received cablegram from Hong Kong, China, purporting to be from his son in which was the word "sick" and asking for a remittance of $200. This amount was sent to a bank in Hong Kong, China, but as yet no receipt has been received for the money, and it is not believed that the money has been applied for. As Mr. Bennett did not know that his son was in China he sent the money so that if a "game" was being worked by some one to obtain the money they could not get it unless they proved their identity.

Eugene Bennett was graduated from Georgetown college three years ago and in October of that year, when he was 21 years of age he received his commission in the Phillipine constabulary forces at Manila immediately after arriving. He finished his course in five months and was given command of a company at Manila.

He was stationed last year at Bongao province, Sulu, and was stationed before his resignation at Ciasi in the same province. He resigned on March 31. A letter was received from young Bennett by his father while he was stationed at Siasi in which he stated that he would probably return home by way of Europe. He received $700 in cash due him for his services when he left Siasi. This last information was received through the government authorities at Washington.

A communication has been forwarded to the consul general at Hong Kong and the United States government is also making an investigation from Washington in his case.

As Bennett was in good health when last heard from and well supplied with funds on leaving the province where he was stationed, the fact that he has not written home since combined with the cablegram makes his family dread foul play.

The habit and fury of work unreasoning illogical, quite unrelated to an need is a masculine disease in this country, and the whole social system has for years paid the inevitable penalty. Here and there a man tries to stop in time, but finds himself obsessed by work so that he can no longer think of anything else. He is as much a slave to it as is any opium taker to his drug and drunkard to his potion. It is a grave danger, not only to the individual, but to the whole American civilization.—From the Atlantic Monthly.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Trustee's Sale

In the District Court of the United States for the western district of Kentucky—Owensboro division.

In the matter of Jasper S. Reynolds bankrupt.

As trustee of the above estate, I will on Friday, the 2nd day of July, 1909 at 1 o'clock p.m., in front of Commercial Hotel on Main street in Fordsville, Ohio County, Ky., sell at public auction to the highest and best bidders the following described property, to-wit:

1. A house and lot in Fordsville, Ohio County, Kentucky, consisting of a house and one acre of ground, bounded on the North by Ed Strother; on the East by Hartford Street, on the South by J. W. Cheek; on the West by the Brown property.

2. A house and lot in Fordsville, Ohio County, Ky., bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone, J. R. Walker's N. E. corner; thence running in a Southwestern direction with Walker's line 108 feet to a stone; thence in a Southernly direction 129 feet to a stone; thence in a Northeasternly direction 100 feet to a stone on Sycamore Street thence 117 feet to the beginning.

3. One house and lot in Fordsville, Ohio county, Kentucky, situated on the East side of Walnut Street and bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone in the center of said street, and corner to Morris Wilson; thence with said street S. 53 W. 96 feet to a stone, corner to John Wdding; thence W. 37 E. 173 feet to a stone; thence N. 53 E. 134 feet to a stone in Morris Wilson's line, 33 feet West of his corner; thence with his line N. 52 W. 173 to the beginning, containing one-half acre, and being the same conveyed to J. S. Reynolds by T. W. Brown and wife, Feb. 27th, 1905; as shown by deed of record in Ohio County Clerk's office in Deed Book No. 15, at page 15.

Also a number of judgments, notes and accounts belonging to said estate.

The first mentioned house and lot will be sold $1,000.00 cash, and the balance in six months; the other two lots will be sold on a credit of six months. The purchasers will be required to execute bond with good security for all deferred payments, bearing interest from date of sale with a lien retained upon the property as additional security; but all purchasers will be given the privilege of paying cash if they so desire, or they may pay the bidders before maturity by paying interest upon same to date of payment.

The judgments, notes and accounts will be sold for cash.

All of said property will be sold free of incumbrances, and the liens, if any, on said property, will be transferred to the proceeds of the sale. All sales will be subject to the approval of the court.

To Sell Tobacco in Europe.

The A. S. of E Board of Control of Muhlenberg County has decided on exporting to Liverpool and London some twelve or fifteen hundred hogsheads of tobacco. Twenty car loads will be ready to go forward on June 15th when a special rate that has been arranged for by Manager Doss will become effective. Other shipments will continue to be made for months at the rate of fifteen cars per week. For the first time in the history of the organization the growers under their present management are going direct into the world's markets without the aid of the middleman or dealer. No doubt they will receive handsome remuneration by so doing.

UNITED STATES BIG TREASURY

Vault Holds $500,000,000
of Emergency Currency.

Built of Steel With Electric Alarm
System—Wonderful Sight
to Behold.

Tourists rarely will see one of the most imposing of the new sights in Washington—the great steel vault in the Treasury building, where $500,000,000 of emergency currency will be stored. The vault which was begun under the administration of Assistant Secretary Louis A. Coolidge, is an accomplishment of which he properly is very proud, is completed and in working order, except that the telephone connection was inadvertently omitted.

It is in the northwest corner of the division of issue, and its roof is twenty-five feet below the surface of the street and five feet below the sub-basement of the Treasury building. In fact it is almost under the foundation stones of the building, itself, for they protrude into the vault on the south side and form a convenient shelf, which the clerks find useful as a temporary receptacle for packages which they are assembling to take upstairs. The vault is reached only by an electric elevator which opens only into the office of the chief of the division of issue. It is wholly of steel an about fifty-five feet long by twenty feet wide and eighteen feet high, and is divided into two stories. The second story has a grated floor, like that of a marine engine room, and both floors are fitted with stacks much like those in use in public libraries. Bank notes are printed in four forms of uniform size, viz., four fifties and two one hundreds, three tens and one twenty and four tens. The fifties and one hundreds are cut up into sheets and all are made up into packages of 1,000 sheets each, in which form they fit accurately into the pigeon holes, of which there are about 15,000.

The Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency act requires the printing of $480,000,000 of the new money, and already about $320,000,000 has come from the hired vault owned by the trust company, here, where it has been stored, and placed in the new vault.

The new banknotes differ from the old only in bearing the words, "Secured by United States bonds or other securities," and in time they will supplant the notes now in circulation. The government plan is that the emergency currency shall be practically the same as that secured by United States bonds, the only difference being that when the notes are issued on securities other than government bonds, the book-keepers of the department keep a record of the issue and the notes are taxed in accordance with the provisions of the room.

The new vault is used for reserve stores only; the money is actually issued from the old vault, opening out from the office of the division of issue, four flights up.

Seventeen miles of fine wire are wound around this steel cavern, and the slightest disturbance of any one of these tiny wires, the like of which you see in the glass door would sound a bell in the main office of the Western Union Telegraph company, in F. street, and in a jiffy the department would be notified. During the hours when the vault is officially open, this signal would be disconnected or disregarded but the moment the vault is closed, the Western Union by contract with the government, fixes sleepless eyes upon the signal boxes.

The amount of bank circulation outstanding, of the old form, is about $590,000,000. The new act provides for the issue of $480,000,000 and during the last year about $120,000,000 of the new currency has been taken out. Every day the teams of the bureau of engraving and printing bwing to the office of the division of issue about $500,000, which is recorded and taken down the electric elevator to the waiting vault below. Every package is numbered with the number of bank for which it has been printed, and the packages are arranged in numerical order, beginning with the oldest chartered bank. The notes in the name of the National City bank of New York City, occupy 333 pigeon holes and as the smallest packages contains $40,000 the total sums is larger than the greatest king's ransom.

At The First Census.

One of the clerks of the Census Bureau estimates that there were less than 30,000 surnames in the United States in 1790, at the time the first census was taken. Of these 11,934 represented single families. Only two names—Smith and Brown—were represented by 3,000 families and over.

Four per cent of the white population were represented by nine names. First came the Smiths—close upon 6,000 families of them. A long way behind, with less than 3,400 families to its credit, came the clan of the Browns. Then came the Davis tribe, with 2,575 families to its credit while that of Jones, only 14 behind, pressed angrily upon its heels. Next were the Johnsons, actually outnumbering the falling short of them in total number of persons, the Jones families being more prolific. The Clarks and Williamses were wrestling for the sixth and seventh posts in the race with the Millers a close eighth and the Wilsons bringing up the tail with only 1,765 families to their credit and 9,797 individuals.

"A large proportion of all the names," says our informant, "are adaptations of nouns, verbs and other parts of speech, and in general represent the simplest Anglo-Saxon terms."

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, health and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless Consumption," writes W. R. Lipscomb, of Washington, N. C. "He took all kinds of remedies and treatment from several doctors, but found no help till he used Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. He is a well man to-day." It's quick to relieve and the surest cure for weak or sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs and Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Asthma and all Bronchial affections. 50¢ and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

TAX BACHELORS AND CHICLESS.

Austrius May Have Law Compelling These to Contribute More to Government.

In the search for new means of raising money to meet the rapidly increasing cost of militarism, in which European governments are generally engaged England has gone furthest with her plan to levy higher death and income taxes and to tax real estate profits, or the "unearned increment."

But it remained for Austria to propose the most unique scheme. In the Reichsrath a few days ago the financial minister, discussing the budget, asked for a supplementary income tax on bachelors, widows and childless married couples.

Race suicide and voluntary bachelorhood have been attributed to the prohibitive cost of supporting a wife and family in these days. Militarism has contributed greatly to this embarrassing economic condition in Europe and now seems to be trying to mend matters.

The government can not reduce the cost of living but it is at least able to make things uncomfortable for those who would shirk matrimony and its obligations. Its intention, however, is hardly philanthropic. It has only found a new excuse for taxation.

The plan that the Maine legislature recently had under consideration was better. There was no chance that it would prove successful, but its purpose was humanitarian. The idea was to tax voluntary bachelors for the pensioning of reluctant old maids.

Of course the difficulty in making this plan work lies in the finding a woman who would testify that she never received a proposal. The pensions might remain undistributed. Trouble might also be occasioned by women claiming the pension on the ground that though they had received proposals, the offers were not such as they could reasonably be expected to accept.

And it would be too easy for bachelors to swear that they had made the three efforts necessary to secure exemption from the tax and had not been accepted.—Spokesman-Review.

FOR FLETCHER'S

LIEUT. EUGENE BENNETT MISSING.

Not Heard From for Several Months.

Resigned From Philippine Constabulary Forces on March 31—Foul Play is Feared.

It is very much feared that Lieutenant Eugene R. Bennett, a son of Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Bennett, of Utica has met with foul play in China. Bennett was until recently a second lieutenant in the constabulary forces of the Philippines.

On April 25, Mr. Bennett received a cablegram from Hong Kong, China, purporting to be from his son in which was the word "sick" and asking for a remittance of $200. This amount was sent to a bank in Hong Kong, China, but as yet no receipt has been received for the money, and it is not believed that the money has been applied for. As Mr. Bennett did not know that his son was in China he sent the money so that if a "game" was being worked by some one to obtain the money they could not get it unless they proved their identity.

Eugene Bennett was graduated from Georgetown college three years ago and in October of that year, when he was 21 years of age he received his commission in the Philippine constabulary forces at Manila immediately after arriving. He finished his course in five months and was given command of a company at Manila.

He was stationed last year at Bon-gao province, Sulu, and was stationed before his resignation at Ciasi in the same province. He resigned on March 31. A letter was received from young Bennett by his father while he was stationed at Siasi in which he stated that he would probably return home by way of Europe. He received $700 in cash due him for his services when he left Siasi. This last information was received through the government authorities at Washington.

A communication has been forwarded to the consul general at Hong Kong and the United States government is also making an investigation from Washington in his case.

As Bennett was in good health when last heard from and well supplied with funds on leaving the province where he was stationed, the fact that he has not written home since combined with the cablegram makes his family dread foul play.

Drop by drop the offensive discharge caused by Nasal Catarrh falls from the back of the nose into the throat, setting up an inflammation that is likely to mean Chronic Bronchitis. The most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh is Ely's Cream Balm, and the relief that follows even the first application cannot be told in words. Don't suffer a day longer from the discomfort of Nasal Catarrh. Cream Balm is sold by all druggists for 50 cents or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street New York.

The American Husband.

The plan that the Maine legislature recently had under consideration was better. There was no chance that it would prove successful, but its purpose was humanitarian. The idea was to tax voluntary bachelors for the pensioning of reluctant old maids.

Of course the difficulty in making this plan work lies in the finding a woman who would testify that she never received a proposal. The pensions might remain undistributed. Trouble might also be occasioned by women claiming the pension on the ground that though they had received proposals, the offers were not such as they could reasonably be expected to accept.

And it would be too easy for bachelors to swear that they had made the three efforts necessary to secure exemption from the tax and had not been accepted.—Spokesman-Review.

The habit and fury of work unreasoning illogical, quite unrelated to an need is a masculine disease in this country, and the whole social system has for years paid the inevitable penalty. Here and there a man tries to stop in time, but finds himself obsessed by work so that he can no longer think of anything else. He is as much a slave to it as is any opium taker to his drug and drunkard to his potion. It is a grave danger, not only to the individual, but to the whole American civilization.—From the Atlantic Monthly.

FRIDAY, JULY 2.

The only kind of reform administration which is entitled to any credit is the one which "reforms."

A few more whirl-wind educational campaigns by State Supt. Crabbe will do away with the necessity of employing teachers for the coming year.

With free hides, free cotton and free coal the New England manufacturers would no doubt make some very cheap boots, shoes and clothing, but would they sell them any cheaper to the south?

The government is having a strenuous time of it trying to make out "what is whiskey." Of course there are thousands of men who know, but they won't tell.

It is said that there is talk in Washington of intervening in Cuban affairs, because of the extravagance of the Cuban government. Who is to intervene in our own case?

When the three questions, what is whiskey, what is a Democrat and what is a Republican have been solved, we desire to submit the question, has General Noel Gaines ever examined General Johnson's office?

When you come to think of it, the idea of the farmer waiting for someone to come and urge him to join forces with his brother farmer to maintain an organization to protect himself from trusts is as absurd as it would be to send a special messenger to him to tell him to go in out of the rain.

The appointment of Hon. John P. Haswell, of Hardinsburg, as Railroad Commissioner to succeed Mr. Mc D. Ferguson, deceased, will meet with the approval of the Republicans of the entire railroad district. Mr. Haswell is an attorney of ability and is popular alike with men of all parties. He has had quite a good deal of experience in public capacity having served a number of terms in the State Legislature. His services will no doubt be a credit, both to himself and to his constituents. He should be given the nomination to succeed himself without opposition.

With all the shifting of schedules by the extra tariff session of Congress it is not likely that any perceptible change will be made but the wage earners and business men of the United States will be many millions to the bad, because of the uncertainty brought about by the attempted revision. The only reason the Republican party is not to be wiped off the slate, because of the blundering, is the fact that there is no organized party to take advantage of the mistake. As for the Democratic party, the special session has knocked every prop from under it, and not only convicted it of duplicity on the tariff question, as represented by its members of Congress, but has left it without argument in the future, which will be listened to by the American people.

The farmer must work out his own salvation, not "with fear and trembling," but with a firm steadfast faith in the righteousness of his cause. A steady nerve and a fearless heart and purpose to stand for his rights, no matter who assails them. No one occupying any other avocation in life can be expected to take up his battles, make the sacrifices, stand the storm of jeers, criticisms and ostracism which fall to the lot of the man who stands in front of this great battle for justice to the American farmers.

They must show a willingness to make a few sacrifices, give a small portion of their time and money to perfect their organization. Let every individual farmer feel that it is his duty to assist in the work and that it is his duty to make sacrifices if necessary. When this condition exists it will make it easy for those who are directing the organization, and the time will come when it will be unnecessary to send men out as canvassers to see that the farmer protects his own interests.

The last quarterly meeting of the Methodist church for Hartford circuit was held at Beaver Dam, last Monday afternoon. The meeting was well attended by the official members and the reports show an excellent condition in all departments of the church work.

Owing to two breaks which occurred to our linotype machine, we have been compelled to omit quite a good deal of news from our columns this week, and we are indebted to the Hartford Herald for courtesies extended in our efforts to reach our readers on time.

In a letter received by Mrs. E. J. Hudson from her son, Alfred, of Kefler, Okla., tells of a disastrous fire which occurred in that growing little city last week in which about fifteen houses were destroyed entailing a loss of $75,000, a drug store owned by Mr. Ellis Jones, formerly of Fordsville, was burned and he suffered a loss of about $3000. The house occupied by Mr. Hudson was saved from destruction by extra hard work.

The prospects of the plan to have every Sunday school visited next Sunday seems very flattering, not a single appointed has refused to go or get some one in his place, up to the hour of going to press, so report the county officers should any school fail to have their regular appointed visitor present. Please send in the no present and the list of delegates to county convention to E. W. Ford, Hartford. Some schools have not organized this year, this day would be a good time to take of the work first of the quarter see list of schools and visitors is another column.

We are reliably informed that train service will be inaugurated to Hartford August 1st. The company will run the trains which now stop at Fordsville to Hartford until the rest of the line is completed and then through train service will be inaugurated to Louisville, beginning probably about November 1st. The work of ballasting the line between Mitchell and Hartford began last Monday, and is progressing favorably. The fill around the depot site which is being made by Mr. Steve May with a force of men will be completed within the next week. The Railroad Company is sparing no expense in making the approach to the depot site easy and commodious.

Notice to Road Overseers.
By order of the Fiscal Court, the overseers of roads in the Hartford Magisterial district are hereby warned to have their roads in good condition by August 1st, or I shall be compelled to report them for prosecution. Some sections of the road are in such condition that they must be fixed even before that time.

Respectfully,
E. P. BARNARD,

Administratrix.

Death of Mrs. Lydia Conner.

After an illness of about one month's duration, Mrs. Lydia E. Conner died at the residence of Mr. D. Ford at an early hour Wednesday morning of last week. Funeral services were conducted at the Christian church by Elder H. C. Ford Thursday morning at 9 o'clock after which the remains were taken to Shelbyville for interment. Mrs. Conner leaves no immediate family. She was an aunt of Mrs. D. Ford, with whom she made her home for many years. She was very prominently connected with the people of Shelby county, where she was born and raised.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. W. H. Moore, J. H. Williams, John T. Moore, John W. Taylor, Wallace Riley and Dr. C. J. Rhoads.

Mrs. Conner was born March 5th, 1841. She was united in marriage to Mr. L. Conner in the year 1855. He preceded her a number of years ago to the spirit land. She became a member of the Missionary Baptist church when about fourteen years of age. In 1891 she united with the Christian church, and lived a consistent christian life until the end.

All who knew her loved her. She made many sacrifices for the christian cause. She was 68 years, three months and eight days old when death came. She prayed the Saviour to meet her in that solemn hour, and the peaceful expression of her countenance gave evidence that her prayer was answered. She rests from her labors and her works do follow her.

A Diplomatic Bent.

By EDWARD S. SPINNEY.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

I was tutoring a youth of nineteen. I had a fancy to go abroad in the diplomatic corps, but as I had no influence to secure an appointment I kept my ambition to myself. My pupil, Alec Kirk, should have been ready for college, but he was not, and it was my part to get him ready as soon as possible. His father, after turning him over to me, went to Europe. Before leaving he gave me a single instruction—viz:

"Don't let any woman snare him while I am away."

I made a companion of Alec, and he seemed to enjoy my society in preference to that of young fellows of his own age. He gave me his confidence in everything but one. A woman laid siege for him, and he did not tell me. His father had lectured him before going away on his susceptibility and told him that I was empowered to forbid his attentions to any woman. Alec not only failed to trust the master to me, but told the woman who was trying to snare him of my charge. She was smart enough to keep aloof from me, and I did not discover her or her object till I was informed of both by the housekeeper. I warned the housekeeper not to divulge the fact that I knew of what was going on. If I could save the boy I would put his father under obligations. Mr. Kirk had great political influence.

Alec wished the lady to win my good opinion. She, supposing that I knew nothing of their affair, consented, though reluctantly. I was introduced to Miss Martha Collingwood, aged twenty-eight, impecunious, passably good looking and of a common family. I called on her with Alec and during the call manifested a friendliness that disarmed both. But while extending the olive branch I was sharpening the sword. I suggested that Miss Collingwood and Alec use the tennis court at his home and even offered if we could find another girl to make up a set with them myself. I had in mind Miss Gladys Hoyle, young lady who had the faculty of making the most rapping remarks with the most kindly pretended intentions. Knowing that there is nothing which will turn a man from a woman quicker than a feminine fight, I hoped to use Miss Hoyle for the purpose of drawing out whatever of temper Miss Collingwood might possess and intended that Alec should witness the scrummage.

"We secured Miss Hoyle, and I chose her for my partner. Miss Collingwood opened the game, serving to me. I sent the ball back, and she returned it. It dropped just within the line, but I pronounced it foul.

"That wasn't foul," said Miss Collingwood.

I looked at my partner for support. "Certainly it was," she said.

"My eyes must have deceived me," said Miss Collingwood.

"Some people can't play tennis at all," returned Miss Hoyle, "on account of their eyes. I thought I saw something amiss with yours. It's quite noticeable."

There was an ominous flash from Miss Collingwood. She made no reply, and the game went on. My own game had opened auspiciously, and fortune continued to favor me. Miss Hoyle in volleying close to the net sent the ball against Miss Collingwood's nose. The latter dropped her racket and caught a trickling stream of blood in her handkerchief.

"You did that on purpose," she cried, casting a flashing glance at Miss Hoyle.

"You flatter me. If I could hit a mark like that I'd enter for a championship," replied Miss Hoyle.

Miss Collingwood was getting ready for a rejoinder when I added to her ruffing by asking if she would proceed with the game.

"I don't think she'd better," Miss Hoyle put in, "with that nose. It'll be all the colors of the rainbow tomorrow. My advice is raw beef."

"Some people are offensive with their advice," snapped the sufferer.

Pleasure had gone out of the game for Alec. He proposed to stop playing. Miss Collingwood started for the house to put cold water on her nose. Alec, instead of accompanying her, found occupation in gathering the balls and rackets. I whispered to him to take Miss Hoyle home. She smilingly accepted his invitation. As the two walked away Miss Collingwood turned and darted a fiery spark. I saw her home, adding fuel to the flame by telling her that I thought Miss Hoyle had sent the ball against her nose on purpose and was trying to catch Alec.

I supposed that I had only made a beginning, but I was mistaken. When Alec and I met again he confessed to me that there had been an affair between him and Miss Collingwood (at which I expressed great surprise), but that it was ended. I kindly offered to give him my advice as to the best method of dropping it. The illusion had passed out of him, and nothing could bring it back.

When Mr. Kirk returned from Europe I made no mention of his son's escape, but he learned of it and asked me about it. I told him the story, at the end of which he said:

"You should be in the diplomatic corps. The first requisite of a diplomat is absence of conscience. Judging from your acts in this case, you don't know the meaning of the word."

I confessed that I had a hankering in the diplomatic line, and he promised to see the secretary of state in my interest. The result was an appointment, and, having begun with a small stroke, I am now making big ones.

Wanted a Teacher With Wooden Leg.

A Mountain romance has been brought to light through the following queer advertisement inserted in a Colorado paper by a member of the Virginia Dale districts school board.

"Wanted—for school district No. 12, a teacher with a glass eye, gray-headed, a wooden or cork leg, so she can't dance and is sure to take to the woods if she sees a man coming."

Miss Myrtle Prude taught the Virginia Dale school. She was pretty. She was deluged with invitations to dances, and a dozen youths of the farming country laid their hearts at the altar of her beauty.

The grave heads of the school board soon decided that a teacher who dances so divinely and so frequently at night could not properly work her head during the day.

Then enter the school board with its outspoken advertisement.

BIG JUDGMENT IN HARDIN CIRCUIT COURT.

Oscar S. Bond Wins Suit Involving about $12,000 From Olla Wilson of Fordsville.

One of largest judgments returned in the Hardin Circuit Court is recent years was handed down yesterday by Judge Chief in the suit of O. S. Bond of this city vs Olla Wilson of Ohio county. The plaintiff obtained judgment from the defendant for $11,189 with interest from July 1st 1908. This was the entire amount claimed in the petition and Wilson did not appear in court or fight the action. To satisfy the judgment a sale of ten bonds of the Kentucky Tie Co., of which Bond and Wilson were both incorporators seventy five shares of the stock of the concern and 20 shares of the stock of Willson & Co. all belonging to the defendant was ordered. The sale will be made by Master Commissioner Ashlock next county court day.

Alaska's Part in the Seattle Show.

In a vague way we have come to realize that Secretary Seward was not guilty of the "folly" of which he was accused when he paid $7,200,000 for "The Alaska Purchase".

It is now producing in gold alone every year three times as much as we paid for it. Over $120,000,000 worth of gold, $80,000,000 in furs and $96,000 from its fisheries have been taken out of Alaska in the last forty years.

It has developed an American population with American energy at its highest pitch. Of the $600,000 appropriated by the Federal Government for its representation at the exposition $100,000 was allotted to the Alaska exhibit.

The Alaskans themselves promptly trebled this sum in order that it might be proved beyond all question that their country is not an icebox, but a treasure chest.

And they will show not merely its minerals—gold, silver, copper, tin, lead, coal, petroleum, gypsum, marble, antimony, quicksilver and graphite; not only its fisheries, whose product has now reached the value of $10,000,000 a year—they will also display vegetables fruits and grain by way of proof that Alaska is not only a place in which money can be extracted from the ground, but a territory of vast agricultural possibilities.

I suppose that I had only made a beginning, but I was mistaken. When Alec and I met again he confessed to me that there had been an affair between him and Miss Collingwood (at which I expressed great surprise), but that it was ended. I kindly offered to give him my advice as to the best method of dropping it. The illusion had passed out of him, and nothing could bring it back.

When Mr. Kirk returned from Europe I made no mention of his son's escape, but he learned of it and asked me about it. I told him the story, at the end of which he said:

ORIGIN AND SIGNIFICANCE OF BLUSHING.

It is a Positive Sign of an Active Mind and is Confined to the Face.

An eminent English medical psychologist has recently declared that it requires brains to blush, that the ability to blush is in direct ratio to mental alertness, and that blushing is an achievement of which every one should be proud, for it is a positive sign of an active brain.

Idiots can not blush, and neither can animals. Similarly infants do not blush, although they learn to do so at an early age—just as soon, in fact, as the brain begins to exercise its higher functions. Moreover, the blush can not be caused by any physical means, it is the mind which must be affected, says Pearson's Weekly.

Aside from the fact that blushing has its origin in the minds, its most striking peculiarity is that it is, with rare exceptions, confined to the face, ears and neck.

While the whole body may tingle with heat, there are few known cases where the actual reddening of the skin extended farther than the collar bones off the shoulder blades.

According to Darwin, and Sir James Paget, our personal appearance and not our moral conduct is the fundamental element of blushing. It is started with the wish to be admired, in the mere thinking of what other people thought of us.

In the early stages of civilization people were judged more for their physical beauty than for their moral conduct, and the habit of blushing arose from the fear of blame or disapproval on that account.

Then, as the race progressed, and moral and intellectual qualities became more and more to be valued, the fear of blame or disapproval became, as it were, grafted on to the other, and simpler fear, and to express itself, by mental association, in the same way.

As our ideas became more complex, and we kept adding to our reasons for blushing we were not able to change our physical makeup, and continued to blush in the same old way and for all the new causes.

This brings us to the difference between the flush of anger and the true blush. As anger is a mental state incited from without so the mental confusion which shows itself in the blush originates within us.

We have seen how blushing originated in an anxiety about our personal appearance. Now, our chief concern in this regard has always been the face, the natural seat of personal attractiveness.

Therefore, the first thought upon meeting those whom we desire to please was of our faces; and if for any reason we suspected and if, for any reason we suspected that our faces did not please, our minds were naturally concentrated upon the defect there.

Shyness, modesty, shame—all have their foundations in the primitive love of admiration; and the blush of the girl who meets her lover is, after all, only a sublime sort of personal vanity, questioning its owner's power to please.

In Sad But Loving Memory.

Of little Mary Elizabeth Renfrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Renfrow of Narrows who died June 23, 1909. She was 18 months old, she left behind a mother and father and two sisters a host of relations and a world of friends to mourn her loss. She was a little flower budded on earth to bloom in heaven. No sweetener or purer spirit could have lived than hers. She has suffered much pain. The death angel bore her pure sweet spirit to eternal rest. All that loving hearts and willing hands could do was done, but God saw best to take her home where all sorrow and sufferings are over and where no farewell tears are shed.

Mary Elizabeth was a sweet little girl it was hard so hard to give her up but the happy thought of meeting her in Heaven above gives comfort and peace to our bereaved hearts. May we all live close to Jesus and meet Mary Elizabeth in heaven.

Once we had a household treasure, Little Elizabeth fair and mild;

And our in full sweet measure,

Centered in our darling child.

Mary E. grew each day the dearer,

As her happy life went on,

Until the angel coming nearer,

Seemed to call, and she was gone,

Her life was frail and tender,

Faded as the falling leaves;

And our hearts were made to render,

Tribute to the fate that grieves.

Mid the days in quiet spring time,

Sad and sweet with flowers bright;

Mid the grief we shall remember,

Mary E. spirit took its flight.

Thus we lost our household treasure,

Who so easily passed away.

Thus did grief in full sad measure,

Come to us that sad spring day.

Thus were ties so sweet and tender,

Broken 'neath the heavy rod;

Thus did we in tears surrender,

Little Elizabeth back to God.

Earth has lost its look of gladness,

Heaven seems to us more brighter;

Since the spirit of our darling,

Took its happy homeward flight.

Her Cousin, ELIO T. RENFROW.

IN CASE OF INJURY BY ANOTHER

Wait Patiently for Your Passion to Cool Before Determining What to Do.

It is human nature to resent an injury, and with the first flash of angry resentment comes the determination to get even, to "hand back" in kind what has been inflicted. As in every case of anger this is one of the times to wait a bit before doing anything reckless in the way of "handing back" the bad coin you think you may have received. It often happens that we are offended where no offence was intended. Some careless word, some thoughtless act is construed into intentional malice, and so we make the mistake of cherishing anger against one who is innocent of evil intentions.

It is always best to be sure before you go ahead, especially in cases when the "getting even" impulse is uppermost. Returning evil for evil, under any circumstances is a poor way of settling accounts and never brings satisfaction in the end. You may persuade yourself for a time that you are glad you gave as good as you got but the gladness is of short duration and is soon displaced by a sense of discomfort of self-disgust, and the "I wish I hadn't" feeling.

One of the current beliefs concerning Indians is that they will cherish for years, if need be, the memory of a wrong and then when their chance comes work their vengeance. It is, of course, this widespread idea that prompts the saying: "I'm like an Indian. I never forget an injury. I can wait a long time to get even."

Well, the longer you wait, the better. Even to the smart of a deep injury comes soothing in a little while and the desire to get even passes. One may be saved much suffering from the consequences of hasty, angry action if the getting even process is put off until an indefinite to-morrow. And then there is another phase of the question. It is not worth while to put yourself on the level of one who is capable of intentionally injuring another and this is what you are doing when you return injury for injury. Hold yourself above the mean action, even if you have been the victim of one.

There is seldom an injury inflicted whose effects are lasting, though it may seem beyond bearing in the beginning, but time, the healer, cures all things and with its passing, what was once a deep wound leaves scarcely a scar.

The only things worth trying to get even with are the kindnesses shown you. These are to be remembered, appreciated and returned with interest. Anything else is not worth noticing.

The argument of this tale is do not inflict injury, wait about retaliating until you have had a chance to change your mind, and don't pride yourself on being an Indian when it comes to remembering a wrong.

J. G. Crabbe to Resign.

Paintsville Herald says that J. G. Crabbe, state school superintendent to succeed the late Dr. Lark as president of the Eastern Kentucky State Normal at Richmond. The appointment of Mr. Crabbe, it is said, has been unanimously agreed on by the board of regents, and the appointment will be announced later. Mr. Crabbe is said to have accepted the position and will tender his resignation before September 15. His successor will be named by Governor Willson and will fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Crabbe.

Dawn.

The most difficult, exasperating, and rantankerous pessimist with which the smiling, festive, and irrepressible optimist has to deal is the fellow who takes some stock in the deal is the fellow who takes some stock in the old saying that it is always darkest just before dawn. There is, of course, no argument over the fact that dawn is a joyous occasion, even if it is more pleasant to stay up for it under proper conditions, than to get up for it, but says the pessimist, admitting the truth of the adage, one cannot tell when it is darkest, until he actually sees the dawn. He is likely to say, furthermore, that if it's going to bring dawn any sooner, let it get dark as—almost anything and the sooner and darker the better.

One positively cannot argue against such logic, for, as aforesaid, dawn is a joyous occasion except to the man who is asleep and he doesn't count. As for the man who is intoxicated it is also a question whether many of the beauties of dawn are not lost, because he is already so busy with his own responsibilities that he cannot take on any new joy.

Then there is the man who would stay up all night in a brilliantly-lighted room, practising unto-suggestion by repeating the word "good." Under the glare of artificiality, such a man would be prone to claim that there was no darkness outside, but that it was all inside. But if after settling up, he went out at the first faint blush of dawn, it would look to him like about thirty cents' worth of adulterated tallow candles, and it might require several subsequent sittings with the cards running better to dispel the hallucination.

All these, of course are exceptions which cannot be considered. Normally, darkness and dawn have to be taken just as they come, and they continue to come with regularity, pester notwithstanding. —Phil Collom in July Lippincott's.

In Loving Remembrance.

Of our dear papa, Dr. L. T. Cox who died June 21, 1906.

Three long years ago you left us; Hour by hour we saw you fade, And slowly and sweetly sink to rest. Yet in our aching hearts we prayed, That you might longer stay, But we know you are safe in Heaven, And Heaven retains our greatest treasure.

Often comes from our hearts a bitter cry Oh why, why, did our dear papa die, Oh, God how mysterious and strange are thy ways,

To take from us our loving papa in his best days.

Sweet thoughts shall ever linger Around the grave where you are laid,

You have won a crown in Heaven, By the pain you suffered here.

We miss you from our homes dear papa.

We miss you everywhere, For one we loved and dearly prized Lay cold in death before our eyes.

Home is not what it used to be, Since our dear papa is not there, And how the sunbeams love to linger Where our darling papa sleeps.

Papa dear three years ago This sad, unhappy day, We laid your form away to rest Where now it dwells with God in Peace,

And love forever more.

Every breath is a sigh for our dear father, Who left us and every hour That passes brings us nearer to him, Papa rest in peace.

MARY.

In Memory.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hurt and took from them their darling babe. She was born August 14th, 1908 and died June 13th, 1909.

Little Elizabeth was an uncommon bright child and one who every one loved. Weep not dear parents, we know it was hard to give her up but she budded on earth to bloom in Heaven. She has gone before where parting is no more. Prepare to meet her in the great beyond.

New Scalp for Women.

Three patient surgical gardeners by transplanting skin from Mrs. Anna Roderson's legs to her head have restored about a quarter of her scalp nearly as good as new, but they cannot guarantee that hair will grow on it. If not, there are wigmakers.

Mrs. Roderon, a vigorous woman of thirty-two, living at No. 417 East One Hundred and Twenty-second street was employed in Henry Lehman's mustard works, No. 213 East One Hundred and twentieth street. There her hair caught in a whirling grinding machine, February 8 last, and, in an instant, her scalp, from the top of her forehead to the nape of her neck, was torn off. In profoundest shock, she was hurried to the Harlem Hospital. For some days her life was despaired of, but she survived, although the danger she had passed slightly unbalanced her mind.

Early in April Drs. Healy, Herrity and Bennett of the hospital staff, began their surgical gardening. They grafted little patches of her skin on the right side of Mrs. Roderson's head.

They have performed nineteen such operations, some of the minute islands of skin took root, so to speak, others languished, but a quarter of her cranium is covered with new-growing scalp.

Making a nice scalp is tedious; besides Mrs. Roderon will be watched constantly, for she has threatened suicide. But the doctors will keep at it.

CHANCE NAME OF THE METHODIST CHURCH.

There is a Strong Movement on Foot to Drop Word "South" From the Title.

A Memphis, Tenn dispatch says—The dropping of the word "south" from the name of the Southern Methodist Episcopal church at the next general conference at Asheville, N. C., will be urged by many ministers, according to reports made to the Memphis Methodist association. The matter has aroused a great deal of interest and was the subject of a hot debate by local members of the church. It was explained that the failure of missionaries to be able to explain the meaning of the word South in the church's name while working in foreign lands is directly responsible for the movement. The Methodist church in the south has had the word in its official name will oppose a change now title since before the civil war, and Missionary workers are taking the lead in the movement here and elsewhere in the south.

The Easiness of Death.

It is as natural to die as it is to live—and as easy. Practically all the distress witnessed as taking place in the act of dying is the automatic tissue struggle against dissolution and is not recognized by the individual who seems to be acutely suffering. Occasionally in the delirium of fever, in uremia and other intoxications, in certain of the brain degenerations witnessed in old age, there is an exhilaration or happy, peaceful calm that pervades the final scene.

I remember one dear lady, a Swedishborgian who believed that after death one would follow the occupation that had been most congenial the present life. This lady was especially fond of babies, fondling them and giving them personal care. When she came to die, of a lingering most painful illness—at the final moment a beautiful smile pervaded her countenance, she beamed in gentle ecstasy and murmured "Now I see the heavenly light; I see a baby."

Yet Nature is not often so lavish with her kindness. Usually everything is dulled, blunted, so that at the border line between life and death it is often difficult, even impossible for a certain time, to say whether the soul has fled or not. It was long debated in medical circles whether or not there was a reliable test for death. Indeed the tissues always survive the departure of the vital spark for a longer or shorter time. A muscle will contract to the electric current for a considerable time after the soul is on its way. The hair grows palpably after death.

Of course there are some exceptions, and once in a while so I read and so I am told, some one dies really in conscious terror and protest; but I have not seen such a taking off and I can state candidly that of the many scores of deaths that I have witnessed, in hospital and out, among the very poor and very wealthy the young and the old, the plots and the blasphemers, some of which have been very painful to behold, in nearly all of them the main actor at the last moment was not conscious of what was going on. The occasional examples of conscious cheerfulness are the exception and still more so instances of terminal torture.

The World's Gold Supply.

There is about twice as much gold in the world to-day as there was a quarter of a century ago, and the amount is half as large again as it was 10 years ago. The stock of gold money has grown at an even greater rate, being practically 75 per cent larger than it was a decade ago. These statements summarize in a very general way the result dismissed by some tables prepared by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor for publication in the forthcoming statistical abstract of the United States. Speaking in general terms the gold production of the world from the discovery of America to the present time has aggregated $13,000,000,000; the amount of gold now in existence is estimated at $11,000,000,000, and the value of the gold coin in all the countries of the world for which statistics are available now aggregates about $7,000,000,000.

One of the notable features of the statistical showing made is the rapid increase in the production of gold in recent years. It appears that prior to the year 1700 the world's gold production averaged about $5,000,000, a year; from 1700 to 1750 it averaged about $10,000,000 a year, and from 1750 to 1850 it averaged about $12,000,000 a year. Then came the period of the great gold discoveries in the United States and in Australia. The output was increased nearly tenfold, the annual output of gold mines ranging above $100,000,000 a year from 1850 to 1890. In 1893 the production exceeded $150,000,000; the year following it was $181,000,000; two years later than that, viz.: 1896, it was $202,000,000. Thenceforward the increase was still more rapid. The $300,000,000 line was crossed in 1899; more than $400,000,000 was produced in 1906, $410,000,000 in 1907 and $427,000,000 in 1908. Summarizing the results of the great increase in gold production during recent years, it appears that the output of that metal during the 10 years ending with 1908 aggregated $3,400,000,000, while the product of the 15 years immediately preceding amounted to $2,400,000,000, making a total of $5,800,000,000 worth of gold produced in the last 25 years out of a total production of $13,000,000,000 since the discovery of America.—Bradstreet's.

Sheriff's Sale.

The Commonwealth of Kentucky, to the Sheriff of Ohio county, greeting: We command you that you expose to sale the estate of J. S. Vertrees, to-wit: A certain lot lying and being in the town of Hartford, Ky., and designated on the plat of the East Addition to said town, which plat is of record in Deed Book No. 31, on page 233, and which lot in said plat is designated lot No. 2, in Block "S", and being the same lot conveyed to Jas. S. Vertrees by the Cessna Realty Company, as is evidenced by deed of record in the office aforesaid in Deed Book No. 36, on page 282, which, according to our commands, you have taken into your hands, and which still remains in your hands unsold, as you have certified to the Judge of our Ohio Circuit Court, to satisfy Butler Bros., the sum of $62.54 with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum, from the 19th, day of October, 1908, until paid.

Also, the sum of $12.15 which in the same Court was adjudged to Butler Bros., for their costs in that behalf expended, whereof Butler Bros., hath recovered Execution against the said James S. Vertrees, by virtue of a judgment of the Ohio Circuit Court, and that you have the said sums of money before the Judge of our Court, at the Court House in Hartford, Ky., on the Saturday succeeding the first Monday in July, next to satisfy the said Plaintiff's debt, interest, and cost aforesaid, and have then and there this writ.

Witness E. G. Barrass, Clerk of our said Court at the Court House aforesaid, this 3rd day of June, 1909.

Was Not Suicide.

The Muhlenburg Argus says:—Coroner J. H. Brown informs us that the five-year old son of "Doc" Scott did not commit suicide, on account of being punished by his mother as reported in this community and published in the newspapers last week. He says he made a thorough investigation and is convinced that the little fellow came to his death by accident.

Mrs. Scott had washed and cleaned up the little fellow and he and his little sister had gone out to play, as they had done daily. They went near the well, the curbing of which is some inches above the ground and covered by a top in which here is a small door. The children noticed that the rope was out of the pulley and the boy climbed up to put the rope back when, for some cause the trap fell dropping him downward. It is evident that the boy's head struck the side, breaking his neck. No water had entered his lungs, which is evidence that he was dead when he struck the water. The first intimation Mrs. Scott had that the boy was in the well was from the little girl who ran to her mother and told her of the accident.

Mr. Scott has been prostrated since the sad event, and sufferers keenly over the report that she had whipped the child.

The Latest Scheme.

We note the following in one of our Western Kentucky exchanges: "The latest fake practiced on farmers is done by a man who visits the place and claims that he has been sent out by the State to examine fruit tree diseases. The fellow will go over the claims are affected. Shortly after orchard and mark all trees which he visits a confederate will appear and say that he has a preparation which will cure the disease for which the tree is condemned and will contract to inject a fluid into the roots for a certain price. Both men are swindlers and should be run off the place with a shotgun."

Safety in Airships.

Current statistics report that since 1783 only 57 persons have been killed as the result of flights in gas balloons. This takes in a period of crude experimentation, the scientific methods of later time reducing the risk of life. Hardly a week passes in the United States without its record of killings by automobiles, the victims often being occupants of motor cars as well as those in their path. Yet the popular impression is that of the two forms of locomotion the aerial method is far the most hazardous. Possibly the reverse of this, when fully understood, will lessen the attraction of ballooning as a sport. What sense will there be in stealing an airship for a joy ride when there is no promise of bowling over a few children in the highway of the air, and small chance of smashing the machine against a telegraph post? Half the fun of tearing through a crowded street or around a blind turn is in the possibilities of loss of life and limb.

We are told that ballooning is already inexpensive by comparison with maintenance of fast automobiles. Add to this the assurance of its relative security for all concerned and the day that the airship will supplant the motor car as an instrumentality of exciting pleasure may be long delayed.—New York Press.
